Overview

Eliza Fromberg advises investment management clients, including investment advisers, broker-dealers, boutique investment banks, hedge funds, real estate funds and family offices on regulatory compliance, securities, transactional and general corporate matters. She counsels both emerging and established fund managers in forming and structuring pooled investment vehicles and complying with U.S. securities laws.

In addition to advising clients on formation, structuring, and governance issues, Eliza guides clients through the process of becoming registered with the SEC, FINRA and the CFTC, and navigating the complex regulations applicable to financial market participants. Her practice encompasses both day-to-day legal issues and pivotal events, such as mergers and acquisitions, restructurings, and regulatory investigations. She typically represents family-owned or closely held businesses.

Prior to joining Day Pitney, Eliza served as managing director and general counsel at a boutique investment bank that provided equity research, equity financing, M&A advisory, institutional sales and trading, and wealth and asset management services to institutional investors, corporate clients, venture capitalists, entrepreneurs and financial sponsors. When she first entered private practice, Eliza was an associate at a large international law firm, where she defended financial institutions, private funds and prominent individuals in regulatory enforcement matters and civil litigation.

Experience
